Tenders Too High On Housing Plan

Newmarket—No further progress has been made on the low rental housing scheme, the town council was told but a motion was passed at a meeting in the council chambers Monday night to buy the 20 acres of land on the south side of Eagle St. from the county. The land is to be used as a site for the houses.

Mayor Vale said that the tenders received by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation from contractors had been several hundred dollars above the maximum figure. Unless there is some scheme worked out for a negotiated contract, it will be off, he said.

"Although there has been no confirmation that the offer to the county for the 20 acres has been accepted, my contention is that we still want it, housing scheme or not," said Deputy-Reeve J. L. Spillette. He added that the offer was $7,000.

Council members agreed that the land should be procured by the town because the public is expecting a housing project of some form. The mayor said that the original scheme has not failed yet: Councillor Renzius added that there would be a new plan next year and that the land was a good buy for $7,000.

Mr. Renzius read a motion that if the project failed, the town would map out 50 lots on the property and donate by draw a lot and services to any ex-serviceman who would erect a house worth $3,500 within two years. The motion was seconded by Councillor Aubrey Scythes.

Frank Bowser said that the town could not do that because many servicemen had already bought and paid a lot of money for properties for their homes. The motion was held over.

Mount Albert Man Killed On Highway

Horace Kennedy, Mount Albert, was killed in an automobile accident late Friday night while returning home from work. The accident occurred on No. 11 highway just south of Bradford and Mrs. Kennedy and the driver of a truck were shaken up.

Police said the Kennedy car was hit from the rear by a truck driven by Victor Miller, King. It was believed the Kennedy car had been parked and that Mr. Kennedy was thrown out of the car by the impact. His body was found on the road beside the car, according to the police. Mrs. Kennedy said their dog was also thrown out and killed.

Constable Ronald McDonald is investigating and coroner Dr. G. W. Williams, Aurora, was called to the scene of the accident.

The funeral was held from the Chapel at Mount Albert Monday afternoon. The deceased is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. N. Hammil (Olive), Toronto.

His parents found tracks where he had gone into the bush and asked for help to search for him. He was found by A. Broad.

Anti-Noise By-Law Mooted By Council

Newmarket—A petition against motorcycle noise, tooting horns and other noises, signed by approximately 100 citizens, was read at council meeting Monday night. The mayor referred it to the police committee and said that if it were necessary, council would bring in a "anti-noise" by-law.

Councillors also reported several complaints from citizens about dogs being allowed to roam the town destroying parts of gardens. It was suggested that the dog by-law be enforced by giving out a few fines, but no definite action was taken.

Trumpet Band Granted $300 By Council

Newmarket—The town council granted the Newmarket Trumpet Band $300 at a meeting on Monday night. A deputation of several members of the band which attended the meeting to ask for a $500 grant said that it now has $1,100 and needs $2,100 to pay for the instruments. Davis Leather Company has donated money as well as Dixon Pencil and the recreation commission, according to the spokesman.

He said that an honorary executive had been appointed by the band and that there was much enthusiasm among the members who would be an asset to the town and would train younger boys for the band. The spokesman said that it was known that the instruments used before the war were sold while the boys were overseas but they could find no statement about it.

Pat also expressed the gratitude of the present Grade XIII that they had had the privilege of being taught by Miss King throughout all their years in high school. Mechanical Breakdown Limits Size Of Paper

The editor regrets that a mechanical break-down limited this issue of The Era and Express to 12 pages when it was planned to print 16 pages. As a result some material must be held over until next week. This will also explain why in some issues, pages three and four and nine and ten are numbered ten and 11, and 14 and 15 respectively. The breakdown came after these pages were being printed for a 16-page paper and numbered accordingly.

Over 100 Voters Lose Ballot Monday

Newmarket—Obsolete election laws cost more than 100 Newmarket voters their franchise on Monday. Because of its population grouping, Newmarket was not eligible for enumeration nor, according to the law, could voters be sworn in at the polls. The municipal list, prepared last October, was used and if a voter was not listed on it, he lost his vote.

A court was held Monday, May 10, for appeals against the municipal list, but the announcement of the court and the deadline for appeals was made only the Thursday before, May 6, the same day the deadline expired. For all practical purposes, no notice was given at all. In centres of a 3,500 population or less, voters can be sworn in. Where there is 10,000 or more population, there is an enumeration. For Newmarket with a population in between, if a voter's name was not on the list, he didn't vote.

All day Monday, town clerk Wesley Brooks was swamped with calls from angry citizens who considered him the cause of their loss of franchise. However, the provincial elections are regulated by provincial law and Mr. Brooks had no responsibility under them nor could he act in any way to correct the condition.

Feeling ran high as angry voters who had lost their franchise were turned away from the polls. Citizens who have lived in town for a year or more found they weren't listed. It was pointed out, however, if these citizens were in Newmarket last October when the municipal list was prepared and they were missing from the list, it was their own fault since the list was held open for three weeks for correction at that time.

Death Accidental Coroner's Jury Finds

Newmarket — Death was accidental, according to the inquest verdict on the death of John Bleury, who was killed by a fall from the post office building May 28 during the construction of a scaffold around the tower. The jury strongly recommended in the verdict that a more secure type of hitching device should be used in hoisting objects and that the employees be kept at a safe distance from such objects while they are being hoisted.

Members of the jury were Frank Bowser, Chester Best, Stanley Sheridan, Kenneth Mount and J. Sloss, jury foreman.

James Longbottom, Toronto, a representative of the Constructional Safety Organization of Ontario, who had made a voluntary investigation of the accident, said he thought the three things which had a bearing on the loss of life were the fact that the workmen were under the load while it was being hoisted up the side of the tower, the ladder was insecure and there was an added human element.

According to witnesses, Bleury was standing on the canopy over the north door of the post office when the accident occurred. A plank, hoisted to the tower of the building, came loose and in its fall, struck a ladder near which Bleury was standing. In its fall, the ladder swept Bleury backwards off the canopy. The plank was secured to the hoisting rope by wrapping the rope twice around the plank and hooking it to itself with an open hook.

One of the witnesses said it was possible for Bleury to have stepped back against the wall to safety as his partner did. Another witness said he seemed to freeze to the spot when the warning was given.

The directors are emphasizing the picnic proper this year and have decided to dispense with a speaker, allowing more time for fun, games and friendly greetings.

The afternoon will provide time for a judging competition, limited this year to two classes and with separate sections for boys, ladies and gentlemen. A few snappy ball games will add to the general fun. Ed Whittaker, president, Roy Barker, secretary, and all the directors promise a day of good fellowship for all black and white breeders.

Wm. J. Mulock Wed In Toronto

White snapdragons and stocks decorated the vestry of Holy Rosary Roman Catholic church, Toronto, for the wedding of Mary Elizabeth Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arthur Harrison and great-granddaughter of the late Sir Frank Smith, and William Johnston Mulock, son of Hon. William Pate Mulock and Mrs. Mulock and great-grandson of the late Sir William Mulock. Rev. C. F. Lyons officiated. Cesar Borre played the wedding music and Frederick Kelly was soloist. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her grandmother's wedding gown of antique ivory parchment faille, fashioned with slim-boned basque bodice and low portrait neckline, framed by a gathered collar of lace bordered in pearls. Softly pleated folds of the material, caught up in drape effect by hand-rolled roses of the faille formed a deep cuff and swept into a victorian train. A tiny cap of tulle and orange blossoms held her full-length veil of ivory illusion, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis. Her attendants, Peggy Magee, Mrs. John B. Aird, Mrs. David Young and Susanne Somerville were gowned in ivory faille with large picture hats trimmed with green tulle. They carried crimson roses. Best man was Thomas H. Mulock, while ushers were John B. Boland, F. Bruce Harrison, Stephen Gooderham, Douglas Watson, and G. A. R. Leake. At the reception, held in the garden of the bride's home, Mrs. Harrison received in a printed gown of chartreuse with a brown orchid. The groom's mother assisted in beige crepe with a mauve orchid. For the honeymoon to the U.S. the bride travelled in navy with white accessories. They will reside in Ottawa.

FARR-BRENAIR RITES AT HOPE

Hope United church was prettily decorated with mauve lilacs, narcissus and tulips for the wedding May 29 of Doris Lillian, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Auley Brenair, to James Ellerby Farr, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Farr, Sharon. Mrs. Stewart Stickwood presided at the organ and Mrs. Murray Faris, Bradford, sang I Love You Truly during the signing of the register. Rev. A. E. Millen officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of ivory satin and lace with fitted bodice, full skirt and long sleeves, floor-length embroidered veil with coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Attending her sister as maid of honor was Miss Ruth Brenair, gowned in pink faille with shoulder veil to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Betty Farr, sister of the groom, was gowned in turquoise taffeta with shoulder veil to match. Both carried old fashioned nosegays. Mr. Ronald Farr was best man for his brother. The bride's brother, Mr. William Brenair, and groom's cousin, Mr. Jack McHale, Toronto, were ushers.

Reception and wedding dinner was held at the bride's home where her mother received wearing a squirrel grey crepe gown with black accessories and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother assisted in periwinkle blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride travelled in a flowered blue crepe dress, loganberry wine shortie coat with black accessories. The happy couple left mid showers of confetti for points north. Guests attended from Willowdale, Weston, Toronto, Todmorden, Bradford, Newmarket, Queensville, Sharon, Orillia and Ravenshoe.

Labor Shortages In Farms, Buildings

Newmarket — Labor shortages continue in farming and construction work in the Newmarket district, according to the May report from the employment office. Some Dutch immigrants have been placed on farms during the month but it has not affected the shortage. Farmers from Holland Marsh have been asking for workers who don't require mixed or dairy farming skills. It would be suitable labor for students. High school principals report that most of the older students have jobs available with last season employers.

There is a shortage of carpenters, mostly of trim carpenters and men who can work from blue prints. Work is progressing on the Jersey River bridge at Keswick and it may absorb more labor. In construction, there is a demand for unskilled laborers to do what is considered more strenuous work and most employers want men under 45.

There was a small lay-off at the Davis Leather Co. but the employees were taken into other industrial plants according to the report. There is some work for skilled men such as machinists, moulders and bench hands in the industries, and also for unskilled female workers.

There is little demand for labor in wholesale and retail business and the volume of insurance and real estate business is below that of last year. In this district there is also a shortage of waitresses, cooks and workers, especially in tourist and summer cottage centres.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Had Liquor In Vehicles Court Fines Two

Newmarket—A charge of careless driving, laid against J. W. Biggar, May 15, at Sutton, was dismissed in magistrate's court on Friday. Edgar Clare, Pefferlaw, testified that he was driving from Sutton to Jackson's Point with John Jos. Shearer, Toronto, as a passenger, around 11 p.m. in a heavy rain. He said the car which was driven by Biggar came from the opposite direction with strong headlights in his eyes and seemed to swerve over on his side of the road.

Clare said his car was hit at the front left corner and along the left side, to the back fender. Constable W. Hill, Sutton, who was called to the accident, testified that the accused, Biggar, and two passengers in his car complained to him the night of the accident that Shearer was driving and not Clare.

Biggar testified that he stopped within 50 feet of the spot where the accident occurred and saw Shearer get out of the driver's seat. Shearer, who had no driver's license, denied that he was at the wheel. Biggar also said that he asked Shearer for his license and that he did not deny driving the car. He said it was not until later, in a restaurant, that Clare stated that he was the driver. Counsel for the defence was J. F. McGarry.

Graham Gordon Stephenson, Armitage, was fined $25 and costs because he failed to file an income tax return for 1945. Stephenson said he was up north when a warning letter was sent to his home and that he never received it.

Bernard Lobraico was fined $11.75 for unlawfully having liquor in a commercial vehicle at Mossington Park May 23. A 19-year-old youth from Toronto was fined $11.75 for having liquor in a motor car at Georgina township May 22.

Electors Reject Liberal Party

Approval or disapproval of the government's record was the major issue on Monday. The reduction of government seats by 13 tells its own story of the public's verdict. It was essentially a vote of criticism, recorded in terms of C.C.F. gains, that party taking 16 seats from the Progressive Conservatives for the loss of two. In a vote of criticism, it might have been expected that the Liberal party, as the alternative "free enterprise party, would have gained far more than the one seat it did. That it didn't indicates that in the public eye, the Liberals are tarred with the same brush as the Progressive Conservatives.

The criticism directed at the Drew regime was not confined to its actions, but included all that it represented to the public: control by "vested interests" and other vices generally attributed to the "old line" parties. The most common pre-election comment was "there is really no difference between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives." The loss of seven seats by the Liberals to a gain of six from the government shows how little the voters discriminated between the two.

The Liberal party has a definite role to play as a free enterprise party with a social conscience. It is a role of reform, one which concerns itself with social welfare under the banner of free enterprise. There was little in its campaign which indicated a full awareness of that role. And the voters rejected them accordingly.

Kennedy Report And Northern Fires

Nothing so resembles the destructive power of an unchecked forest fire. Homes and roads can be rebuilt after other natural disasters, but it is many years before nature can begin to erase the scars of forest fires. The damage is not confined to the loss of lumber. Wild life is destroyed, thriving tourist centres wiped out. Nature's cycle is thrown out of balance, affecting soil and water conditions. There is always threat of loss of life, and too frequently the threat becomes a reality.

For the past week, a forest fire has raged in Northern Ontario over an area of more than 200 square miles. Weekend reports had it that only a three-day drenching of rain would quench the fire. Untold damage has been caused to Ontario's lumber resources and to a potential resort area. Two thousand men were fighting the fire which had been called the worst in Ontario's history. Yet this catastrophe could have been alleviated according to the report of the Ontario Royal Commission on Forestry, published last year.

In a chapter dealing with forest protection, there are recommendations for better communication between air service and the ground, the building of more fire trails, development of north-south highways in all major watersheds, pre-season training schools, better pumps, wider use of bulldozers, provision of 100 more fire towers, extension of fire protection services farther nothwards. A concluding note reads: "I believe that the province is exceedingly well served by its protection service and more could not reasonably be expected for the monies expended."

There is the meat of it. Fire protection costs money, a fact sometimes forgotten. Ontario's forest resources must be considered not just in terms of the revenue they produce, but also as an investment to be thoroughly protected. If the budget for this protection is inadequate, as the report suggests in the volume of its recommendations and as this year's fires indicate, then it must be increased. Fire can destroy Ontario's forests. Expenditures to safeguard against fire cannot be too high.

Aurora, Mt. Albert Show What Can Be Done

The success of the Mount Albert Sports Day and the Aurora Horse Show on Saturday reflects great credit on those responsible for the planning and organization. The events have brought much credit to their respective municipalities as well as contributing no little to local pride. There is an inspiration in the successful accomplishment of a group enterprise and the benefits to be derived from such ventures are not limited to material advantage only. From the co-operation and the camaderie that brought these events to successful conclusions springs the community spirit which leads to other accomplishments.

The success of Mount Albert and Aurora makes all the more obvious Newmarket's own laggard action in establishing a similar annual day. The Board of Trade has had various projects under discussion but so far has announced no decision. Regardless of a decision by the board, however, the success of its choice depends upon the support of the public and if the past is any criterion, that support would be of an indecisive quality.

Newmarket's greatest fault is the apparent inability of its citizens to consistently support a major community event. Various organizations have been successful in holding their own special affairs. But there has been no attempt at a community achievement recently because there has been no indication of community support for it. Perhaps it is the lack of leadership. Probably the reward of a successful community event, that pleasant sense of accomplishment, is not sufficiently gratifying to make the effort worthwhile. Definitely, a contributing factor is that ancient but highly developed ability to "wait for George to do it".

In the meantime, other centres take great strides ahead of Newmarket with the development of sense of community achievement which has its culmination in a sports day and a horse show.

The growing volume of traffic along the townline on a Sunday suggests that the time for pavement and the widening of the bridge just before entry into Newmarket is near at hand.

York county taxpayers are going to be billed for a new county building situated in the heart of downtown Toronto. The by-law approving the expenditure was passed last week without dissenting voice. The total cost will be more than $346,000. York county council is like a government-in-exile, meeting as it does outside the county. Now the expatriates are erecting their new capitol on foreign soil.

During a debate in a recent session of the Ontario legislature, a question of a Labor Progressive member was interrupted by the childish heckling of Premier Drew and members of his cabinet. It remained for a Liberal from Eastern Ontario to remind the premier that the Labor Progressive was a legitimate member of the legislature and had a right to the treatment accorded all other members. So it might be said there is a poetic justice in the heckling that spoiled meetings for Premier Drew in closing days of the campaign, attributed as it was to the Communists. Nevertheless, no circumstance, not even that of "turn about", can countenance such displays. Canadian political meetings were not intended as an arena for shouting contests. Canadian political meetings were not intended as proving grounds for imported Communist tactics. The Communists, by their campaign methods, proved again that they are not wanted here.

Letter To The Editor

The Editor: My attention has been called to some articles appearing recently in the Toronto papers dealing with the report of the parliamentary committee investigating alleged price-fixing by the big companies engaged in the manufacture of spectacles, lenses, etc. Of course, there is no attempt at price-fixing today—the situation did not continue long after the investigation began. But the whole tone of the articles mentioned suggests that there is considerable public misconception of the subject of glasses. No person should feel that, when he pays the oculist, and takes home a pair of glasses he is getting merely glasses and nothing more. What he is paying for, actually, is service. The physician makes a thorough examination of the patient's eye, and if he finds a condition that needs correction with glasses, he prescribes glasses. But the glasses are just a tool to relieve an eye weakness, just as liver extract is a tool to treat anemia, or insulin to treat diabetes. Nor does the conscientious physician loose interest as soon as the patient has his glasses — he knows he should be followed up and checked from time to time because the condition of the eyes changes with advancing years and with fluctuations in health. He knows, too, that often when the eyes are apparently weak, the trouble is not actually in the eyes, but that these often serve as mirrors of disease elsewhere in the body.

In other words, the public should be brought to realize that, when a pair of glasses is purchased, it is not merely glasses but service that is paid for. The optical companies would be the first to affirm this statement.

Very truly yours,
B. L. Sinclair, M.D.

Cat Nips

BY GINGER

"A cat may look at a king," said Alice. "I've read that in some book but I don't remember where."—Lewis Carroll.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" said Joe the Printer as he danced into the office yesterday, clenching a bunch of lily-of-the-valley between his teeth.

Euclid, the office rat, was sitting in his pea can pondering and without raising his eyebrows, answered, "Well, about as rare as 30 is in 365, but why speak of the rareness of a June day when we are in the midst of a whole bunch of June days? We're lousy with them at the moment."

The morale of the office girl sitting beside me sank but Joe the Printer whirled like a dervish out into the composing room where he lit in a batch of type.

Euclid has a bad habit of harpooning flights of fancy.

That is what happened to Miss Dish, the girl who works in the office, on this June day. Her world of fancy was shattered. Of course nothing could shatter a fancy flight of Joe the Printer. He just keeps rolling on regardless, but Miss Dish is a sensitive woman.

She probably came along the street that morning, taking in all the Juneness of the day and thinking to herself "How rare a day in June is!" No doubt she marvelled at the fleeciness of the clouds; her heart throbbed in time with the pulsations of June busting out all over; she gave a little skip as she thought of herself romping in a green field, clad in a bathing suit, while a shepherd boy played a flute and lambs danced. An ideal male is in the picture, maybe.

Miss Dish was in tune with June, let us say.

Into the office she tripped and sat down in front of her typewriter, eager to face the letters of the day with a fresh spirit, still thinking of the rareness of the June day.

Then this incident occurs and a comment by this snivelling little rat rings realism back into Miss Dish's heart. The Juneness of the day has fled. Flit! To herself, Miss Dish sighs "Oh, life," and starts typing. The ideal male has gone too.

Miss Dish is a sensitive woman.

Friends of Henrietta Delrimple de Cadiz have been asking about her whereabouts. About three weeks ago, she left in a hurry on a westbound transcontinental transport truck for Prince Rupert where she was to meet her cousin, Baye Rumm, fresh from the Klondike. It was said that Rumm discovered an overlooked gold vein and Henrietta, with an eye for opportunities, took her desire for gold with her and also plans to arrange some sort of a partnership.

The last word from Cadiz was a telegram that Euclid received from Spitew, B.C. The telegram read "Unable to locate Rumm stop Meanwhile 25-foot wall of water rushing down valley stop At present 100 yards . . . Splash."

Since this telegram we have had no word from her. A news item in a Seattle paper, however, said that a cat was seen off the Aleutian Islands majestically riding the crest of a tidal wave in a plugged up sieve. An ingenious one, Henrietta.

Gouzenko's Book Required Reading

Midland Free Press Herald

It is seldom that we devote space in these columns to a book review, but Igor Gouzenko's story, "This Was My Choice," is no ordinary book.

To every Canadian, who yearns toward the Red Star, its description of life in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will come as a nasty shock.

This autobiography of the early years of the Russian cipher clerk, whose disclosures made world-wide headlines under an Ottawa dateline, gives a readily-understood background for the momentous decision which Mr. Gouzenko had to make.

When he deserted his Embassy in 1945 to tell the Royal Canadian Mounted Police the details of the Soviet spy system in Canada, he cut off all hope of living as a free man, and of ever seeing again his relatives in his native land. It was an act born of great courage and conceived in the hope that, through it, light might be thrown on a fascist bureaucracy masquerading under the guise of world humanitarianism.

No person can read Gouzenko's thrilling story without realizing that we must, as citizens of a democracy, unite to halt the spread of communist influences, and unite to correct those domestic evils on which they feed.

Rachel Haight's Recollections

This is one of a series of excerpts from the "Recollections" of Rachel Webb Haight, mother of Charles Haight, Toronto, and descendent of the Hughes family who settled where Aurora is now

I remember one field of oats of five acres father had one year and a man said he would undertake to cut it in a day for a certain sum. Father accepted the offer and the work was accomplished but I presume he did not desire the like task the next day. But with the labor problems before the farmer as it now is he could not harvest a crop in that primitive style. Then if a man wanted the services of half a dozen men for a day or longer he need only mount his horse and visit certain neighborhoods where men of the class he required were readily found. They were not always the best type of the community, either for themselves or their employer. The manner of threshing the grain would be as much of a novelty now as the harvesting. Much of it was done with the flail, consisting, as Webster says, of the handle or hand-staff and the swiffle, or the part that struck the sheaves, which were laid on the floor or some other foundation. There was an implement called the "tumbling Tom", made from a tree, perhaps three feet in diameter, dressed to a point of a few inches, the small end attached to an upright set in the centre of the barn floor and a frame work attached to the other end of the roller to which the horses were hitched, and the roller formed a circle, the sheaves being laid in that manner, over which the horses walked drawing the roller after them. There were wooden spikes perhaps two inches square and four or more long inserted in the roller to beat out the grain, the farmer following after and with a fork stirring the straw and keeping it in place. This was a great improvement over the flail, and father used one always after my memory until the advent of the threshing machine. The machine of that day would be ignored by the farmers of today as too slow. The horse power now supplanted by steam, which is a great boon to horse flesh, and saving of time. The horse, so indispensable to man, has been the subject of much abuse and even cruelty, but steam has been substituted in places where before it was utilized as a power—for instance in the case of street cars there might have been no greater mercy wrought.

CLAYTON WEBB

authoress of these "Recollections." Mr. Webb spent the declining years of his life on the second farm south of the Mulock sideroad. He died June 22, 1883.

Rebellion of '37

There having been much dissatisfaction with regard to the management of the government, and the political parties opposing each other being known as Tories and Radicals or Reformers, finally the situation became so intolerant to the latter, they determined with a man called William Lyon MacKenzie as their leader to hold meetings for organization their forces were ready they would march in and take the government in their own hands, which they flattered themselves could be done without bloodshed. But they found to their sorrow that Burns' words "the best laid plans of mice and men" etc., were true in this case. Their movements were soon suspected by the Tories, who made a rally and fell upon them suddenly, causing them to disperse with all haste, fleeing to the woods by ones, twos and threes, or as they could. In the melee two Tories were killed, Col. Moody and Capt. Anthony Anderson. Some and decided to meet on the 4th. 12th month, 1837. They accordingly met at Montgomery's hotel a few miles north of Toronto on Yonge St. and decided when of the reformers skulked about until they could secretly regain their homes; others who were more deeply implicated in the affair made their way by short stages, walking at night, and getting lodging as they could, across the line. Poor fellows, the price of freedom they failed in getting was dearly bought. MacKenzie was one who escaped; hearing there was a bounty offered for his head, he remained away some years until the feeling had subsided. When he returned and ended his days in Canada.

Samuel Lount and Peter Matthews having been very active in the promotion of the outbreak, and so unfortunate as to be captured, were thrust into prison and kept there till the following fourth month. On the 12th of this month they were led to the scaffold for execution in spite of the entreaties of wives and children and a petition for amnesty signed by 30,000 people, which was presented to the governor, Sir Francis Bond Head, only to be treated with contempt saying two lives were lost at Montgomery's, and two must now suffer. Well do I remember the morning, there was no bright shining of the sun, his face was veiled as befitting the occasion. I think there is a copy of a letter addressed to Sir George Arthur from Lount's wife which might appeal to a heart of stone. There was a semblance of mercy held forth to some if they would give themselves up. Some did, some were captured by strategy and were imprisoned, some in Torono and some in Niagara. At one time there were 16 others sentenced to death, but their sentences were changed to banishment for life. Some died, a few of them returned to their homes, who returned to his own home. The winter following the outbreak was one fraught with much anxiety by those who had friends implicated in it. Many of them who reached their homes were sought after by marauding squads of men of low degree who were anxious to be doing something to gain notoriety, by scouring the country at night under pretence of finding some secreted whom they could bring before some justice and if possible trump up some charge of disloyalty, or at least give them much trouble if not imprisonment. I think there was more of such work in the twp. of King than any others, that being particularly Radical. I was once at my Grandfather Hughes' when a posse came there about ten at night and not being successful in their quest, ordered him, an old man, out of his bed and to harness his horses and take them to Bond Head, a place in an adjoining twp. named for Sir Francis.

IN MEMORIAM

Collingwood—In loving memory of a dear uncle, John B. Collingwood, who passed away June 7, 1945.
God knows how much we miss him.
Never shall his memory fade;
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by Orval, Ruby and family.

Grainger—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Samuel N. Grainger, who passed away so suddenly June 13, 1947. It is lonesome here without you, dad.
There is such a vacant space;
For we never hear your footsteps,
Or see your smiling face.
As angels keep their watch up there,
Please God just let him know;
That we down here do not forget,
We love and miss him so.
Always remembered by Jack, Clara and Shirley.

Mugford—In loving memory of my brother, Trooper Wm. J. (Bill) Mugford, who was killed in action June 11, 1944, in Normandy.
We think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep;
But still within our aching hearts
His memory we keep.
Sadly missed by sister and family

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my many friends and neighbors for the lovely cards, fruit, candy and flowers, etc., I received during my recent illness in the Western hospital. I also wish to thank all those who inquired about me and visited me and for their many acts of kindness.

FARM BULLETIN

IS SUMMER FALLOW OUTDATED?

Many farmers throughout Canada are coming to regard summerfallow as excessive cultivation which removes too much fibre from the soil and gradually invites erosion. New techniques in cultural practices are taking its place to kill weeds, retain fibre and restore fertility. For example, olli barley sown early and lightly with fertilizer was up and cut before Canada Thistle in the same field could bloom. Weakened thistle plants were easily killed by several fall cultivations, without loss of crop.

Implements vary in the East and West, but there's a growing belief that it may be wise to use implements which hold the most trash near the surface. The use of straw and stubble helps retain precious soil fibre. So, also, do forage crops grown in rotation, especially grasses with fibrous roots.

One of the easiest ways to keep abreast of practical new farming methods is to ask your nearest experimental farm or agricultural college for bulletins, or advice on your own problems.

Timely loans have helped many farmers increase their earnings faster. The manager of our nearest branch offers these as part of the service of money which this Bank has provided to Canadian farmers for 93 years.

Hope and Mrs. R. Chapman led in repetition of Lord's Prayer. Roll-call was well responded to by a verse containing the word "harp". Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. J. Hope.

Misses Wright, Newmarket, were Sunday guests of Mr. E. Fowler and Miss E. Francis.

Miss McClure of the Rural Life Mission for Ontario will address the Union church Sunday-school on Sunday, June 13, and will be present at church service to acquaint the congregation with splendid work accomplished by this mission.

UNION ST.

A splendid meeting of the Union Street Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ernie Burgess on Wednesday, June 2. Miss Violet Micks gave a good report of the district annual held at Nobleton last month. A splendid paper on citizenship, prepared by Mrs. Willard Cryderman, was read by Mrs. David English. A humorous reading, "I had but 50 cents", was given by Miss Violet Micks and a duet, Lord of the Lands, was sung by Mrs. Thos. Swanson and Mrs. S. Shanks. Mrs. W. Micks gave a reading entitled A Woman's Job is Never Done, and Mrs. Roy Cowieson gave current events. A contest on jumbled names of the Institute members was conducted by Miss Violet Micks with Mrs. Lillian Johnson and Mrs. E. Burgess being the winners. A delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and cookies was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Irwin Rose, Mrs. L. Johnston and Mrs. W. Rose.

Mrs. Elward Callendar has returned from the hospital and is improving nicely.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Eves who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 6.

The Common Round...

By Isabel Inglis Colville

CONCLUSION DISTRICT ANNUAL

Have you ever wondered when we sit down to a prettily served and well cooked meal why our tongues loosen and we find more news and views to exchange than we ever thought we had dreamed of in our philosophy? The members of Nobleton W.I. had made their tables attractive with gay spring flowers and colorful dishes and our plates with appetizing food.

Returning to the call there was community singing led by the writer who not being overly fond of work herself, made the others do it by calling on the various sections to catch up the melody as she pointed. The result was delightful, but was necessarily short as much business was yet on the agenda.

Miss Lewis showed slides depicting pioneer days and there followed "Let there be light", decribed by Golden Glow in The Era and Express.

President Speaks

The president's address was short. She spoke of her pleasure in seeing so many present and of her joy in the immense spread of Institute work and influence. Mrs. McClure of the federated board brought greetings from the board and stressed the fact that ample time should be given to Institute work. We must, as an organization, broaden our horizons for what takes place outside our land is of vital interest to us, she said. She spoke of the fund for scholarships collected this anniversary year and hoped that other scholarships would be made possible in the future. Sixty new branches have come into being this year, she said. We should revive trustee and ratepayers associations and co-operate more fully with all school activities, she said. The greatest need in the world today is for spiritual values. Only spiritual force can fight the evil forces abroad in the world today.

As the Newmarket bus left somewhat early, a few changes were made in the program. Your scribe's report on publicity was put forward a little. She told how proud she was to be convenor of a committee which dated back to Pharoah. Having heard from 16 of the 25 branches she gave a few highlights from each. Aurora: publicity committee took charge of an entire program, also interested themselves in all local events which makes for publicity. Belhaven: tried to live up to the Ode and Creed, called absent members after meetings and so kept them up to date on proceedings.

Bogarttown: sponsored a bazaar each year. At the last one a movie of the results of dangerous driving was shown, preceeding the sale. Through boxes for Britain established contacts and exchange of programs with British W.I.'s. Elm Grove: has learned that to advertise well in advance and to take part in every good work makes for publicity. Gormley: advertise each monthly meeting well in advance and even quiltings and euchres had a two weeks' lead.

Kettleby: tried to follow out this year's slogan of co-operation in their branches, in their community with other organizations and in their homes so that they may enter in their activities with the full co-operation of the home folk.

King City: W.I. has a fine opportunity to circulate itself through more than 6,000 homes, the subscribers to three weekly newspapers. Its two plays were widely publicized and its contributions to the King library and boxes to a Kent W.I. are of great value.

Mount Albert: served supper in the community hall on Sports Day and donated proceeds to park board. The branch also presented a heated crib to York County hospital and a banquet to which husbands were invited.

Nobleton: helped canvass area for the T.B. clinics, made tickets for Guelph and theatre night in Aurora. Pine Orchard: had a daffodil tea which, widely advertised, brought many from outside points and also presented a treat to music lovers in the shape of a fine violinist. This branch also makes a point of inviting non-members to all special meetings.

Newmarket: with its rest room, overseas activities and various contributions to town and rural activities is well publicized.

Schomberg: gave book to Schomberg library, sent used Christmas cards on to Toronto, announced W.I. affairs at any large gathering. Snowball: has donated proceeds of social events to national food for children fund and to the Aurora Legion memorial fund. They publicize their work that it may be of benefit to other branches. Temperanceville: feels that the individual advertises himself each day by his cheerful readiness to aid every time and in any place where help is needed. Also this Institute has a scrap book for the past two years—an historical feature and one which any Institute might follow.

Union Street: served lunches to the plowmen at the county plowing match, gave books to two schools for their libraries. One member is a leader of the Girls' Garden club. Vandorf: W.I. celebrated its 40th anniversary this year by giving a luncheon to about 100 guests. As invitations were sent far and wide this was a splendid publicizer. They also advertise a monthly movie by the National Film Board which is shown in Vandorf hall. In addition to these highlights every branch used the press, radio, telephone, letters, gifts to Britain, to York County hospital, to the Children's Shelter, to shut-ins and to every appeal which reached them.

The election of officers followed, Mrs. E. Armstrong presenting the slate. Mrs. Corner moved up to the presidency and Mrs. E. Armstrong was added to the vice presidents.

One last thing I wish to mention as it was impressive—a two-minute silence for those "who have fought the fight and finished the course", but whose memory will live in the hearts of those who knew them. This was followed by one verse of O God Our Help in Ages Past.

We were warned at this point that our bus was leaving, so regretfully we missed the last of the meeting but we went away with new ideas and a fresh lease on Institute life.

Homemakers' Exchange

The recipes we have this week for spiced drop cookies and pastry both make use of clarified fat of either smoked or fresh pork. Homemakers, save your fats and use them in your baking — thus conserving scarce materials as well as cutting those much discussed cost-of-living costs.

PASTRY

3½ Cups pastry flour
1 Tsp. salt
⅔ Cup clarified fat, (fresh or smoked pork)
½ Cup cold water (approx.)

Measure flour and sift with salt. Cut in the fat with two knives or a pastry blender. Add very cold water, mixing lightly. Lift dough to a lightly floured board and press into shape with fingers. Roll from the centre outward. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 15 - 20 minutes. This recipe makes three pie shells.

In place of ⅔ cup of pork fat you may use ⅔ cup chicken fat and 2 tsp. salt or 7/8 cup beef and pork fat mixed and 1 tsp. salt.

SPICED DROP COOKIES

1/3 Cup clarified smoked or fresh pork fat
½ Cup brown sugar
½ Cup honey
1 Egg, well beaten
¾ Cup thick, unsweetened applesauce
½ Tsp. baking soda
½ Tsp. baking powder
2 Cups pastry flour or 1¾ cups of all purpose flour)
½ Tsp. cinnamon
1/4 Tsp. nutmeg
1 Cup chopped raisins (optional)

Cream fat and sugar thoroughly. Add honey, mixing well. Add egg and beat well. Add applesauce in which soda has been dissolved. Sift together the dry ingredients and add with the raisins to the creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 20 minutes approximately. Makes five to six dozen.

Guest cook of the week is Mrs. M. B. Seldon who sends this recipe:

LEMON NUTMEG PUDDING

3 Tbsp. granulated sugar
1/4 tsp. salt 3 Tbsp. cornstarch
⅛ Tsp. grated nutmeg
2½ Cups scalded milk
1 Egg, separated
1/4 Cup strained lemon juice
1 Tbsp. fine granulated sugar

Mix well 3 tbsp. sugar, salt, cornstarch and nutmeg. Add part of scalded milk. Return mixture to double boiler and cook until no raw taste of starch remains, about five minutes. Stir part into slightly beaten egg-yolk and return to double boiler for 1 minute. Cool to lukewarm.

Beat egg-white until stiff with 1 tbsp. sugar. Add strained lemon juice to cooled mixture, and fold in beaten whites.

Pour into sherbert glasses and chill.

Remember to send your recipes and household hints: to The Homemaker, c-o Newmarket Era and Express, Newmarket, Ont. Next week: recipes using beef dripping.

Goldfish & Humming Birds

By GOLDEN GLOW

This will be another "pot pourri" for there are a heap of little things I want to write about. I hope the result will be as pleasing as the fragrance of a rose jar with a pot pourri of rose leaves in it. I'll start with a little ruby-throated humming bird. I saw it just as it left the bird-bath in my garden and it perched on the clothesline, so I slipped out quietly to the end of the verandah to watch it. It couldn't have heard me for to my delight it came to sip honey from the blossoms in the flowerbed right beside where I stood. I was perfectly still and it seemed to be quite unaware of my presence as it went from flower to flower driving its long sharp bill into each blossom in turn and humming like a big bumble bee. Of course it does not hum, really, it is the swift whirling motion of its wings as it hovers over the flowers that you hear.

That reminds me. Did you see the helicopter over town Saturday? Now, that was a cute way for any candidate for election to "advertise." Seeing that election day will be over before this goes into print, I can safely say who that candidate was. There was a long streamer floating straight out behind, and you could plainly read "Vote MacKenzie." I was on my way over to the afternoon tea at the Stuart Scott school and we had reached the centre of Lions Park when my companion said, "Look — can you read what is says?"

Maybe it was because we stood out there in the open but the plane circled right over us, before again circling the town, and we watched it disappear to the north-west, to again circle round over the centre of town. It was quite a clever stunt, and I heard later that plenty of others saw it too. The sky was such a deep, deep azure blue and the grass so green, and the trees and shrubs all out in leaf and flower. I passed some beautiful gardens on the way, and one to the east of the Timothy St. gate to the park had some wonderful tulips of every color, standing up like sentinels.

Main St. Garden

Speaking of gardens I have seen several grand gardens since I wrote about them last week—and I'll just mention one this time, for I have other things I want to write about.

It was a week ago today I went to see Mr. Charles McCauley's garden, and it shows what can be done with even such a place as that was when he started on it. Old timers will recall that the block of splendid shops opposite the post office was once a hotel, called the Central Hotel, and it reached from Mrs. Chandler's shop to the Bolton Bakery where Elman Campbell now has his china and stationery store. Where Mr. McCauley's lovely garden now flourishes, was a huge stable and barn, extending quite a way back of the hotel building, and slanting down to a pasture lot with the C.N.R. tracks to the east of that again. So what Mr. McCauley must have had to do in the way of cleaning up that lot before he could start on a garden, you can well imagine.

It had evidently been the custom to use the space under the barn for a dump, and he had to have load after load carried away and some good top earth brought in. But what results he now has for all his arduous labors! Such a beautiful garden looking either up from the east end, or down the slope from the building at the top. Flowers everywhere! His tulips were at their height of bloom, and they were every shade known. I still have the beauties he gave me to bring home in a big flower jar and they have lasted a whole week, as have also the bouquet of pansies. His garden will be a picture all summer, for it has everything, and there's plenty of promise of future loveliness. Some of the stones he has made good use of. He has made little stone-paved runways to carry the rain-water from the conducter pipes in the building down into the garden.

Goldfish in Lily Pool

I must tell about another garden but this time it isn't the flowers I want to speak about but the lily-pool with goldfish darting round with the sun glinting on their golden bodies. One was black and gold and it looked like the golden oriole in my maple tree. We were coming home from the tea and had to stop, as usual, at the garden along John St. to see the fish. I haven't said what a delightful tea it was that afternoon. The tea was as usual in the upper hall beside the domestic science room, and I don't know which was prettier, the flowers everywhere, or the "dainty maidens" who were serving the tea. They were like flowers in their pretty dresses and their smiling faces. Miss Denne must be proud of her girls for they did everything so naturally and so expertly. They made the tasty sandwiches and the tempting array of small cakes and miniature tarts in the domestic science room, each girl had her part to do in the serving—two were at the nicely appointed tea table with its handsome cloth and tea service and lighted candles, pouring tea. There were small tables with fancy tea-cloths and centrepieces of double white lilac and the deep purple variety. One girl brought a cup of tea and she was followed by another with sugar and cream and spoons on a silver tray. Another followed with cute little sandwiches of every known variety and she was followed by one with condiments. After that came the delicious small cakes. The girls and Miss Denne certainly deserve credit for it was a delightful five o'clock tea from every angle.

Home With Bouquet

As usual I came home with a huge bouquet. I think I have attended every tea that has been given there, and they have always been most enjoyable and as I said, I was always given a bunch of flowers when I came away. Folks must know how I love to be given a bouquet of flowers, even if I have some of my own.

I went for a walk the other evening to the north-end and Mr. Wright gave me a bouquet of lovely iris. He says if I go that way again inside of the next two weeks his iris will really be worth seeing. When you want to really see things you have to walk, for in the car you pass so quickly you haven't time to really take it in. We walked up Simcoe St. to Niagara and everyone has been gardening. Everyone has flowers. And it just struck me so forcibly what cozy, comfortable homes Newmarket has. I have seen quite a few homes lately that have been renovated and made into such nice attractive houses. I think Newmarket is a splendid town to live in. The longer I live here the better I like it.

Sunday Night Traffic Plugs Yonge Highway

Newmarket — Sunday night traffic on Yonge St. from the north caused a two-and-a-half mile jam from the Eagle St. stop light back to the Holland Landing curve between 8 and 9 p.m. There was a single line of cars bumper to bumper from the light back to the top of the Landing Hill and a double line around the curve to the bottom of the hill.

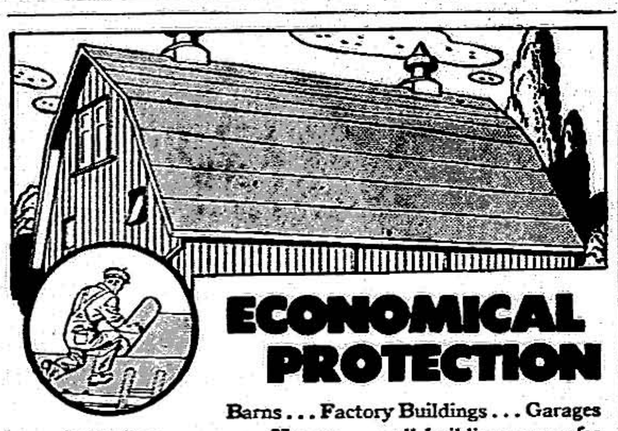

It took one driver 14 minutes to go from the top of the hill to the town line opposite Newmarket's north end. Many cars turned off at that corner and went across on Davis Dr. to the east highway.

"MONEY MAKES THE MARE GO"
...BUT HORSE SENSE HELPS
As a farmer, you're well aware of the truth of this old proverb . . . and you know it's not just how much money you have but how wisely you spend it. That's horse sense.
Last year, thousands of Canadian farmers showed they had plenty of it. Under The Farm Improvement Loans Act, they borrowed over $18,000,000 which — with a good proportion of their own money — they used to make their farms better, more profitable farms.
Are you among those taking advantage of this opportunity to get ahead?
If you'd like to modernize your farm and home economically, you'll find, at the B of M, that farm improvement loans can't be bettered for low rates and freedom from other charges.
Ask at your local branch of the B of M for your copy of "Quiz for a Go-Ahead Farmer".

The farmers who borrowed under the Farm Improvement Loans Act last year have better farms, better homes, better lives, as a result. They used the money well . . . to buy machines and equipment . . . to construct and repair buildings, including homes . . . to clear and break new land . . . to buy foundation and breeding stock . . . and to make work and life more worthwhile in many other ways.
THIS YEAR, YOU CAN DO IT, TOO.

Clowns, Cakes at Mt. Albert

(Special)

The 24th annual sports day at Mount Albert last Saturday was a big day for a lot of people from all over York and farther. Sports day at Mount Albert has become well known in this district and draws a big crowd every year, but members of the Park Board said that Saturday's crowd was the largest yet.

Baseball games on two diamonds were going at full tilt during the afternoon and drew enthusiastic crowds. In early afternoon, the Newmarket Vets bowed down to Aurora who took the Yets 2-0. On the Aurora team Bagnel pitched, Walsh was catcher and M. Walsh took a three-bagger with Doug Clark and C. Walsh assisting on the scoring.

If you spent all your money down the midway, you could wander over and see a variety show in mid-afternoon on the outdoor stage. Dancing girls, singers, and even a cowboy did their stuff. A cow puncher who hailed from Saskatchewan galloped around the park and field on a pretty lively steed and later pulled up at the stage and gave out with a song and guitar. A clown who seemed to be permanently surrounded by a knot of youngsters wherever he went kept up a running show for the kids. Well liked were some little Dutch girls who did a song and dance about the Old Dutch Mill.

A baking contest brought some "out-of-this-world" looking cakes, pies and tarts to the community hall and downstairs the ladies were preparing to feed the crowds with big dinners.

The big day was finished off with an open air dance in the evening. It was the biggest day for the children. Probably every youngster in Mount Albert who was old enough to walk was there and they even came younger than that, on wheels.

Garden Tips

A. A. REINKE

Construction of Rock Garden

On no account should a rock garden be built in the centre of a lawn. The arrangement of such a garden should conform to nature's grouping. There should be no attempt at precision and the look of extreme tidiness which spoils everything but the most formal design, will most certainly result in failure no matter how carefully it may be planned. The finished scheme should be distinguished by character and natural charm, avoiding circles, squares and oblongs. Let the design take the form of a miniature mountain range or a small rugged hill with irregular lines.

Good drainage is essential and should be provided by incorporating coarse cinders, gravel, broken limestone in the centre area of the rockery and well down towards the base; this will insure the excess water being drained away. Alpine plants do not suffer from cold but many perish very quickly on sodden ground.

A study of natural arrangement of rocks suggests that they should be of many sizes if the garden is to be interesting. Wherever there is a steep slope, several large rocks at the base will prevent the soil from washing. There should be no crowding of rocks or the effect will be heavy. No stone should stand on end, instead each should lie on its broadest base. The problem is to build up the rocks informally and with soil between them. They should never be arranged in correct tiers, nor should the direction of the strata in the rock be seriously changed.

Pockets and fissures should be filled with a rather rich, not too light soil, consisting of good loam and one-fourth leaf mould, and coarse sand. Incorporate very fine chips of limestone, which may also be sprinkled on the surface. It is advisable to mix in a little peat moss, and make sure all crevices and fissures open into areas of soil, pressing out any air pockets. No further fertilizers are necessary when these soil mixtures are used.

No stone should stand out too prominently, as each rock should overlap another and should conform to the natural aspect of the design. The rocks may be buried one-third of their depth, appearing as an out-crop, not sitting on the surface. When finished, the garden should be pleasingly irregular to give it a natural appearance, the land sloping sufficiently in all parts to provide rapid surface drainage. The slopes should not be too steep, in order to permit the rain to penetrate the soil, and reach the roots exposed.

Planting Material

The material for planting in this form of garden is almost unlimited as alpine plants of many species and varieties may be numbered by the thousands. Species or varieties that are remarkable by reason of great rarity rather than beauty should be carefully avoided by the amateur. Plants of easy cultivation and those which will give a good display, ought to first be grown by the beginner, then, as taught by experience, the finer and novely plants may be secured. It is well to grow in the rock garden some of the interesting little plants which draw much attention, such as campanulas, sedums and sempervivums, all of which are easily grown with success.

Special pockets of soil may later be provided for plants demanding certain requirements, but where the average good soil exists, it is seldom necessary to make any additional provision. Distinctly rock - loving plants must have the conditions which they like. These should be supplied them in order to insure success.

Many fine little bulbs may find a congenial home in pockets of soil or hidden under patches of sedums or thymus. Bulbs such as snowdrops, scillas, crocus, muscari, chionodoxa, ixiolorion and the beautiful iris reticulata add materially to the glorious beauty of the rock garden. These bulbs should all be planted in the autumn.

Perennials which form pretty rosettes of foliage can be grown with ease on a stone wall or between stone steps in the rock garden. Gypsophila repens proves a beautiful trailing plant for placing in a small pocket of soil and in July and August becomes a cloud of small white and pink flowers. Iris lucustrous is a dainty native creeping species from the Bruce Peninsula and Manitoulin Island, about four inches in height, blooming with sky-blue flowers in May. Iris pumila blooms about the same time, in while, yellow, blue and purple.

Depending on the situation and the amount of space available, some shrubs might be included. The best rock garden shrubs are found amongst the evergreens, as they provide a rugged touch and lend dignity to the rockery. Juniperus tamarisifolia and sabina are excellent, the mugho or dwarf mountain pine and dwarf thuyas also proving desirable. Retinosporas are particularly fine for rock planting, and also the dwarf spruce. Tall and wide spreading material should be avoided. Other ornamental shrubs worth planting embrace cotoneasters, euonymus, berberis, daphne and erica.

In closing, it is suggested one bear in mind never to stand stone on end. Make the rock a secondary feature, the plants receiving most prominence. It is not a geological collection but a garden under construction, the rock being simply a framework to hold the garden together. Never mix granite and limestone, but use only one type of stone in order to obtain harmony. Avoid using heavy clay or hot sand for planting, as a gritty loam proves best, providing good drainage and not permitting a water-logged condition.

I WANT TO KNOW

Am I too old to buy life insurance?

The middle-aged man who asked this question feared that at his age the cost of life insurance would be prohibitive . . . but even were he much older, Mutual low-cost life insurance would still prove good business.

Unfortunately many people realize the importance of life insurance only when through age or other disability they are no longer able to secure it. A life insurance programme should be started as early in life as possible.

Consult your Mutual Life of Canada man today.

The new Reos will spoil you for any other truck you have ever driven. You'll enjoy the amazing ease of handling; turn on a dime, get into tight places, or through traffic, like a charm. The Gold Crown engine is built specially for trucks—the frames are cold-rivated and much heavier. The dual-action primary brakes are a real safety feature. And you can carry more pay-load on a Reo, per inch of wheelbase, putting a little extra profit in each trip that is straight "velvet". Repair costs are cut to a minimum—because Reos are precision-built by men who manufacture only trucks and buses, and can plan for trucking economies from the ground up.

Lacrosse

Lacrosse is all set for a comeback. Scoot down to the rink Thursday and take a peek at the newly organized lacrosse team in action. They'll be battling Woodbridge in their initial test on the arena floor. You won't regret the excursion. The gutted stick artists get underway at 8.45 p.m. Newmarket is classed as intermediate B. They are tied up in a seven-team grouping with Hespeler, Six Nations Indians, Orangeville, North Peel, Maple and Woodbridge. The local club, incidentally, has a new manager. Ted O'Halloran, who replaces Harry Doonan. Charlie "Kid" Harman holds the coaching reins while Harold Gwyn, who has been the "working man' to get the club organized, is secretary-treasurer. A date to remember is Thursday, June 10, for the opening lacrosse battle.

Mount Albert Sports Day

Did you take in the Mount Albert annual Sports Day? The softball fans and femmes had quite a day of it. Eight teams faced the barrier. Moe Walsh and his Aurora nine walked off with the major purse money. Smack off the start Aurora hexed Newmarket Vets 2-0 in a hurlers duel between Vets' "Joint" McComb and Aurora's super-dooper import, Normie Bagnall. Unionville ousted Keswick 3-0 in their saw-off. Zephyr "Blues" surprised Turner Motors of the Scarboro league with a 1-0 triumph. Mount Albert outlasted Hope to sneak home with a 9-7 victory. In the semi-finals Unionville slapped down Zephyr 6-1 while Aurora slipped under the wire by a 2-1 margin over Mount Albert. Aurora and Unionville took the field in the finals with Aurora taking the big money pot 5-2.

Ladies' Softball

The gals make their first home appearance tonight against Valley's of the Barrie league. The opening "to do" will likely be big league in every way. The ladies won their first away game at Shanty Bay by a wide margin, 21-0. Coach "Peaches" VanZant is intent on keeping them at a winning pace. And they tell me the lassies have their new uniforms. Ah! Ah!

Midget Baseball

Bill Haskett's Lions are having a busy week of it. Monday the Lions put the double whammy on Stouffville, right on the latter diamond, by an 8-1 margin. Wednesday they are due to replay the game that was called no contest here last Friday and tomorrow night, at the S.S. grounds, the visiting opposition will be Richmond Hill who chalked up a win over our lads last week. The Lions will be out to return the compliment.

Lions Midgets Take Stouffville 8-1

By GEO. HASKETT JR.

Happy days are here again and here to stay we hope. "Ortie" Thoms showed those ever troublesome Stouffville midgets a thing or two Monday. Making his initial appearance as a starting flinger, Ortie led Bill Haskett's Lions to an 8-1 triumph over Stouffville, setting the losers down with only three hits, while running up a string of nine strike-outs. Taking their cue from the mound work the Lions came alive with an almost perfect defence and drove out five solid blows just when they did the most good.

Catcher Bill Hillaby, playing one of his best games, kept the infield on the jump. In the second he smashed out the longest blow of the game, a triple into centre field. He scored moments later on an infield out. This gave the Lions a two-run lead as "Midnight" McKnight completed the round trip in the first on some daring base running and "Spike" Cain's infield hit. McKnight counted again in the third and Joe Burke came all the way around to the pay station in the fourth.

In the seventh Newmarket staged their big innings with a four-run display. Howard Peterman and "Red" Wilkins started with singles, "Ortie" Thoms was hit by the pitcher, and all registered on pinch hitter Johnny Eustace's ringing double. Stouffville's single marker was pushed across in the third with "Ducky" Davis chalking it up on a hit and an infield out.

Friday night the Lions attempted to get their home stand underway. The curtain raiser proved a nightmare. They got in four innings, not enough for a game, which is just as well as Stouffville had a 10-3 margin. In this one the Lions failed to hit and were guilty of ten errors in the field. Ross Newton started on the hilltop but was the victim of a poor fielding support. "Spike" Boadway and "Ducky" Davis were on the firing line for the visitors and had an easy time of it. Line-up: Newmarket: A. McKnight cf, J. Cain lb, H. Peterman lf, D. Wilkins rf, W. Hillaby c, L. Thoms p, K. Burke 2b, R. Newton 2b, J. Hugo ss, R. Coveney 3b, J. Eustace 3b.

Pot Begins To Boil On Simcoe Circuit

The teams in the Lake Simcoe softball circuit are warming to their work. This week Zephyr Blues slipped in with an 8-7 win over the visiting boys from Hope. Hope, always at their best in their own backyard, doubled up the count 8-4 on Queensville. In the other Tuesday tilt Zephyr were home free, knocking over Brown Hill 6-4. This was the third straight win for the Blues.

It was a real battle on June 3 between Mount Albert and Willow Beach, the Mount nine coming down in front 7-6. At Zephyr the Blues found the going tough before knocking over Queensville 4-3. Queensville, after some losing efforts, showed a lot of fight. Brown Hill and Keswick were rained out Friday.

So the pot is boiling. The battles will get hotter along with the weather.

Langstaff Ties Vets In Final Inning

The Vets went to Langstaff last Thursday for their opening encounter and when it was all over, the score was 11-11, which was about the way things ended up last year in the finals with the two teams going the limit with several tie games thrown in.

Newmarket, in the early frames, appeared to have the issue tucked away. They led 10-2 at the end of five. Then Umpire Summers tossed the Vets ace twirler, "Joint" McComb, out of the game. 'Twas said for too colorful language. "Jointer", up to this point, had the Langstaff hitters in the palm of his hand setting them down with but one scratch hit. On the other side the Newmarket swingers, Bob Peters, Mickey Smith and Joe Tunney were teeing off on Bill Bowen's slants. Bob Peters marked his return to the game, after an absence of several years, with a four for five effort. All told the Vets banked out 16 hits. They got seven runs in the second, three more in the fourth and a single in the eighth.

With "Joint" McComb getting the ouster, Ted Taylor, a product of the local midget league, took over the mound duties. The rookie Taylor did well by himself in the sixth, seventh and eighth, holding Langstaff to two runs. His mates turned in some fielding gems to help the situation. In the last of the ninth Langstaff exploded with a bang to chase over seven runs and earn a tie in the tilt.

Blue Jays, Dodgers Lead Midget League

By GEO. HASKETT, JR.

Peace, its' wonderful. Monday, the midget laddies were taking a rest from their chores on account of the King's birthday. Tuesday's contests have been moved over a day to Wednesday from now on so as not to interfere with the Vets' home games. But it's just the lull before the storm. The first half of the schedule has been completed. From now on it's going to be a knock-em-down and drag-em-out struggle for the four play-off berths. At the moment, the Blue Jays, Dodgers, Braves and Giants appear to have the inside track. The Cubs are still very much in the hunt. Another fact in the Cub's favor is the number of postponed games they have coming up. They could quite easily oust one of the leaders. The Cards and Pirates are well back but are staging a battle to keep out of the basement.

Now a word on the latest draft. Here it is lads. Stan Blizzard from Yonge St. way gets the nod to report to the Pirates. Bill McHale goes to the Cubs and Murray McDonald has been called up by the Cards. Here's the latest standing as of June 8.

	W	L	Per.

Dodgers	5	2	715

WESTERN REPORT
CONTINUED

A lot of money went east when Jim Speers' Lord Fairmond failed to win the King's Plate. Since Jim Fair hasn't entered Last Mark in the Canadian Derby at Winnipeg on July 1 they won't have a chance to see the duo run in the west. They hope to have Sweepblu, Coleraine or All British in Winnipeg to give Lord Fairmond some opposition. The western racing meets draw crowds up to 10,000, the betting is fairly heavy and the purses very low, from $200-$800. Feature races might get $1,000. The Canadian Derby, however, rates five grand. The B.C. folks are insistent that if everything had been right Ohsodry, the Vancouver horse who topped all two-year-olds in money winning last year ($13,165 as against $11,715 for Last Mark), would have left them all behind. Veteran western horsemen point with pride to the fact that Osiris the Second, owned by Jim Speers of Winnipeg, tops all the Canadian sires in 1947. His progeny won $93,280.

Boxing, as Olympic trial results show, is not neglected in the west or B.C. either. The west dominated the trials at Montreal and these boys are more in the simon pure class than those produced by Deacon Allen and the Ontario promotors. Never did get around to the queston of track and field but let's just recall the names of Percy Williams, Cyril Coafee, Jimmy Ball, McPhail, Doral Pilling, Alex. McNaughton, the high jump champion, all dark horses in the past, and don't forget that western beauty of the 20's, Ethel Catherwood, as well as one or two other western gals. Except for marathon racing, the west has been able to compete with the east in the past.

Those of you who saw the cycling meet at Newmarket last July 1 will recall the success of the St. James' cycling club from Winnipeg. The sports pages, while good, are not as well written as the better eastern papers, but then that may be explained by the better salaries paid in the east by the bigger papers and the jaunts to the east of Jimmy Coleman, Andy Lytle, two of the better products in the sporting fraternity. We were impressed with the growing organization of minor sports in Saskatchewan and undoubtedly within a few years, the west will be as highly organized as in Ontario.

One thing sure, the folks are beginning to get a bit up in arms at the actions of professional clubs in placing kids on negotiation lists and restricting their future for years. They're also getting tired of supplying the east with plentiful puckchasers and within a decade we may see eastern kids doing a Horace Greeley if present prosperity holds up. Josh Druery, ex-Newmarket boy, dropped over to the convention to exchange greetings and salutations with his friends in canaltown via this corner. He's with the department of highways and is a regular reader of The Era and Express.

Probably the greatest result of any convention or meeting where discussion is frank, is the exchange of ideas and learning just what the other fellow is doing, how he's doing it and why. The Legion convention served a very real need in this regard aside from veterans' problems. We have tried to give you a short word picture of what's what on the western sporting scene—the west is on its toes and there's real enthusiasm and good fellowship everywhere. There are one or two centres close at hand where a breath of western air would do a world of good.

GOODYEAR QUALITY

When a manufacturer builds a tire to sell at so-called "cut-rate" prices, he is compelled to cut quality and mileage too.

Now as always, your best guide to value in a tire is the name Goodyear . . . you can depend on it to give full dollar-for-dollar value. Goodyears are made better to last longer. For the best buy in tires . . . see us right away!
